

Message from Singapore Dean

With close to a quarter of the University's total enrolment in Singapore, Murdoch is proud to have one of the largest TNE operations of any Australian University in Singapore. The University has a substantial history of close engagement in Singapore that dates back to the 1990s, and which has produced many thousands of Murdoch graduates who for a variety of reasons, choose to study their Murdoch program in Singapore. Murdoch now works with two partners – Kaplan Singapore (part of the global education company Kaplan Inc) and the trade association, the Singapore Manufacturing Federation with over three thousand member companies.

In 2013, the university established its first independent office in Singapore to better support partners and the student learning experience. In early 2014, the office was augmented by the establishment of Murdoch Singapore Pte Ltd – a wholly owned subsidiary company of the university which will employ academic and administrative staff to further enhance the student experience and the university's strategic interests in Singapore. With a large student enrolment, improved support structures and a clear commitment to quality in TNE, Murdoch's future in Singapore is very bright indeed.

Associate Professor Peter Waring
Singapore Dean